

Saturday, March 13th, 2010
Yahoo! Headquarters, 701 First Ave, Sunnyvale CA

The third annual Silicon Valley P-Camp was the biggest and best ever! 550 product managers got together for a Saturday of discussions, talks, panels, networking, fun, food, t-shirts and surprises. Under the leadership of SVPMA and with Yahoo's generosity. 34 sessions / talks / panels were chosen from 70 proposals, for a long day of collaboration and participation.

A website and wiki have been set up to capture presentations, comments, photos and other information. See <http://pcamp10.weebly.com/> and <http://pcamp2010.onconfluence.com/>

What is P-Camp?

The world's largest free get-together of product managers. Now spreading around the world as Product Camps, it is a one-day gathering of product folks to share, present, network, learn, laugh and discuss.